HOW RATTLER PROTECTS YOUNG

Washington Hunter's Story of An Encounter on a Game Trail.

"During my ten years stay in Montana I had some experience with the rattlesnake," said an old hunter of Seattle, discussing this poisonous reptile and some of its characteristics. He continued:

"In Montana many have been killed by the rattlesnake. The most dangerous period is what is known as the dog days of July and August. In these months the reptiles are blind and always coiled for action. Very few people ever recover if bitten during either of these months, as the rattlers are more poisonous at this period than at any other time. The rattler is very savage in its blind condition and will strike at all sounds that appear near him.

"Although we are king of all animals, we hate to meet Mr. Snake. The people of Washington should be thankful to have such a prosperous State, splendid climate and to be entirely clear of the poisonous pests that people in many countries dread. I have been informed by good authority that plans are under way to start a big rattlesnake farm near Seattle, the object of the enterprise being to furnish the market with snake oil, which brings a high price the world over.

"In the first week of September, 1895, I had a queer experience with a rattlesnake family. This is a true story. I was on a hunting expedition in the South Crow Creek country in Montana.

"The morning was cold and chilly. I was in a hurry to cross the Quartzite Divide, which is the home of the dreaded reptiles. In picking my way over the rough surface I generally followed old game trails, especially when they led any way near my direction. I just reached the first big butte close to the summit when a large rattler jumped from a flat boulder and challenged me to fight. She almost struck me before I succeeded in getting away from her reach. She was more than five feet long and game to the tail. I think it was the most vicious snake I ever met during my travels in various mountain countries.

"In looking around to see what I could find in the nature of a weapon to kill this venomous enemy I nearly stepped on a large bunch of baby snakes. The little poisoners were huddled up close together. They were about five inches long, brownish in color, fourteen in all, and certainly were true counterparts of their mother, who was only a few yards away.

"You can imagine my surprise in looking down on this reptilian family. I was about to get a step closer when the old snake made a peculiar noise. I had no idea what it meant, but I was soon informed by the wise ones; they knew the call and made a dash for mother. She received them with open mouth, swallowing her little darlings as fast as nature allowed her to give them transportation. It was comical to see those little reptiles hurrying over the rough ground to obey mother's call when she gave them the signal of danger.

"After storing her babies she looked twice her former size, and, expecting trouble, coiled herself for battle. At this moment a thought struck me that I could kill the reptile with my rifle, although I had never heard of any one shooting a snake. Drawing a fine bead on the body of many lives I penetrated her centre with four shells from my 40-82 Winchester rifle."

FREE FOR STOMACH AND BOWELS

We are in receipt of letters from Mrs. Eva Gaskins, 304 Madison St., Topeka, Kan., and Mr. F. H. Gavellas, Wagoner, Okla., as well as many others, telling about the wonderful results they have secured in the cure of their stomach and liver troubles by the use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

This remedy, as all readers doubtless know, has been before the public for a generation and is now being more extensively used than any other remedy for stomach, liver and bowel complaints. According to reliable testimony, it seems to be a very quick and lasting cure for constipation, indigestion and dyspepsia, liver trouble, biliousness, headaches, sour stomach, gas on the stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar disorders. It is a liquid with tonic effect, and so and gentle in action that a child as well as a grown person can take it, in fact, it has no equal for children, women and old people.

It arouses the flow of gastric juice, and by a peculiar action trains the stomach and bowel muscles to again do their work naturally, and in time medicines of all kinds can be dispensed with. A free sample bottle can be had for trial by sending your address to the doctor, for in this way Mrs. Gaskins, Mr. Gavellas and many others first learned of the cure. Later, when satisfied it is the remedy you need, do as others are doing and buy it of your druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle.

For the free sample address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 402 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

Carrollton 10, W. M. A. Seconds 0.

Again the second team went down to defeat at the hands of the speedy Carrollton eleven. The score was not so large as that one ran up by them on our own grounds, but nevertheless it was larger than anyone thought it would be. The day was splendid, the field in the best of condition, and the two teams keyed up to the fight-to-the-finish point, so what but a good game would take place. The Carrollton High's made their first score during the first quarter, only a minute before the whistle blew, when their star place kicker put one of them from the twenty-five yard line. The touchdown was made in the last quarter.

The stars for the cadets were Leslie and Shakespeare, although the whole team played a good steady game. For Carrollton Fullback Rice starred until he received the heel of someone's shoe behind his ear, probably in the same manner Leslie met one with his chin. The cadets received good treatment all during the game and took their defeat in the same old smiling way.
